Detailed Narrative Description of Project: After the December 2004 tsunami, which hit the Maldives and caused extensive damages, many islanders have been displaced to other islands in the country. To make the islands safer to live, with better infrastructures as well as making economies of scale, the government is carrying out a population consolidation program. Regionally important islands such as Funadhoo are to become centers of growth. In the present case, the population of Sh. Noomara is being relocated to Funadhoo with help of the National Disaster Management Center.
Detailed Description of Actual Services Provided by your Company: Space and resources on Maldivian islands are limited, but the population is used to each have a garden. Therefore the areas to be cleared are often extensive. The preservation of major trees is also a major concerns, even though the mapping of these is difficult to carry out before the thick jungle is cleared. The assignment involved following and assisting the clearing process to set out the roads and newly designed plots, as well as mapping the major trees for future conservations. The cleared area was also requiring a certain amount of leveling, and a topographic survey was carried out, based on for permanent benchmarks related to Mean Sea Level.
